

Do not wait to express your feelings

  All and perhaps

*/ All have felt the death of a loved one

We all cried at some point to a burial

We are all embarrassed it did not while they were in life we all have our eyes filled with tears of remembrance

All of us have felt helpless and totally empty all at some point we would have preferred to die to feel the pain so agonizing that his departure leaves disorients us all the world we lose the meaning of life but now instead of feeling this pain, why not laugh maybe they are in a better place maybe you wanted so much that I would not have liked to see you mourn perhaps it was his time, maybe it's better this way perhaps it's time to clean up your eyes and to look beyond their memory

Today in the morning are a world full of opportunities full of wonderful people attempting to occupy the space he left inside yourself to perhaps it is time to close the subject and sawed open the drawer that the day of his death where you stored all your happiness never forget to smile, no matter what happens

No matter what is your life.